Dallas Safari Club

Dallas Safari Club is an autonomous international nonprofit education, conservation and sporting organization serving the interests of wildlife, habitat, youth, sportsmen and sportswomen worldwide. Dallas Safari Club conducts a convention and trade exposition in Dallas each year and holds informative and entertaining membership meetings and activities monthly. The Club publishes and distributes Game Trails magazine quarterly and the Dallas Safari Club's monthly newsletter. The Club's charitable arm, the Dallas Ecological Foundation, serves as a grant and funding medium for public and youth education and wildlife conservation projects around the globe. The Dallas Safari Club and the Dallas Ecological Foundation conduct and fund numerous youth education activities as well as an outdoor education program in public secondary schools. Since forming in 1972, the Dallas Safari Club and the Dallas Ecological Foundation have contributed millions of dollars to programs benefiting wildlife, habitat, people and the sporting community.

GMC's Acadia a dream vehicle

Many new luxuries added to its 2008 models t's the sleek crossover the whole family will enjoy. The Acadia, introduced last year by GMC, combines the capability of an SUV with a smooth ride and responsive handling.

Offered in a variety of trim and equipment packages, all models are available in front-wheel-drive and all-wheel-drive configura-tions. Its safety system includes six standard air bags and a stan-dard StabiliTrak electronic stability control system for mitigating rollovers.

With seating for up to eight, there's ample room for family and friends. And, despite the vehicle's SUV-like front-end height, the body-frame integral structure allows for a lower entry and exit height. Wide rear doors also allow easier entry to the second-and third-row seats as does GM's exclusive Smart Slide second-row seat feature. The vehicle's responsive performance is courtesy of GM's high-feature engine, the 3.6L V-6 VVT, which offers variable valve timing designed for good fuel economy, low emissions and exceptional smoothness. It is rated at 275 horsepower and offers enough power to tow up to 4,500 pounds when properly equipped And GM's electronically controlled six-speed automatic trans-mission delivers both performance and fuel economy, enabling up to an 8 percent improved performance and up to a 4 percent compared with current frontwheel-drive four-speed automat-

But what makes this a dream vehicle for those who live on the road are those wonderful little luxuries that GMC has added to its 2008 models. We're talking about such features as XM Satellite Radio; a rear back-up camera available on the naviga tion system that issues an audible warning when the driver gets too close to objects directly behind the vehicle; heated outside mirrors and heated windshield washer fluid; a power liftgate that opens at the touch of a button to access the crossover's generous cargo space; extended range remote vehicle start; a dual sunroof; plus, a flip-down DVD to keep rear-seat passengers entertained.

Also new for 2008 are:

• The Panic Brake Assist feature. When panic braking is detected, the system automatical-ly develops additional brake pressure to more quickly engage the ABS, potentially reducing overall stopping distance by eliminating the delay caused by not braking hard enough and/or soon enough.

• The Intelligent AWD system. It delivers enhanced driving delivers enhanced driving dynamics and a more refined driving experience. The system takes AWD performance to the next level by incorporating dynamic yaw control and fully integrating with the StabiliTrak electronic stability control system. A target vehicle yaw rate is estab-lished based on driver inputs and driving conditions. Intelligent

2008 GMC Acadia

AWD manages the torque distribution to maintain the vehicle's target yaw rate and optimize yaw stability. For the driver, this translates into better control and more traction on snow and gravel.

The 2008 Acadia comes standard with OnStar Generation 7 (with a one-year Safe & Sound plan). Its MSRP, depending on trim package and options, will range from about $29,990 to

The Acadia is available in 10 exterior colors: Summit White, Gold Mist Metallic, Liquid Silver Metallic, Red Jewel Tint, Deep Blue Metallic, Platinum Ice, Blue-

Gold Crystal Metallic, Dark Crimson, Carbon Flash Metallic

and Medium Brown Metallic.

Ruger M77 rifles introduce new features

Cartridges hard-hitting for large and dangerous game

ig game hunters planning an African safari might want to add one of the new Ruger M77 Hawkeye rifles and plenty of the .375 Ruger cartridges to their list of essential gear.

Sturm, Ruger & Company, Inc.'s new .375 Ruger cartridge was co-developed with Hornady Manufacturing, the world's largest independent manufacturer of bullets.

This powerhouse is described by the Nebraska ammo manufacturer as a practical, hard-hitting cartridge created for large and dangerous game.

According to information from Hornady, although the ammo is slightly larger in diameter than the .30-06, it shares the same case overall length, which means it can be chambered in any standard length action.

Engineers designed the new cartridge with a beltless case and technologically advanced propellants: the .375
Ruger pushes a 270-grain spire point-recoil proof bullet in excess of 2800 fps and the 300-grain bullets leave the muzzle at 2700 fps.

The cartridge was introduced earlier this year in three models:

• 270-grain SP-RP.

For longer shots up to 300 yards.

• 300-grain RN.

The African and Alaskan models have an MSRP of $995 to about $1,095. Other Hawkeye rifles cost about $750 to $780. Earlier this year, Ruger also introduced a left-handed M77 Hawkeye rifle in select calibers. This model features an ejection port, extractor, bolt handle and three-position manual safety on the rifle's left side.

"We are extremely excited about this new co-development between Ruger and Hornady," said Stephen L. SHE Safari setting the standard

Women's outdoor apparel doubles in size for 2008

clothing for SHE Safari is a journey that traverses well beyond the comforts of an air-conditioned office. For 2008, the SHE Safari Team traveled the globe from the mountainous regions of the Eastern Cape, the sub-zero areas of northern Saskatchewan, the timbered draws of the Midwest, the dense bush of Zimbabwe and back to the thorn brush in its home state of Texas

The SHE Safari line for 2008 has doubled in size with new styles, fabrics and complete new product lines. Women going on safari will love new additions to the line in styles, fabrics and accessories. With 10 new styles within the safari collection alone, women now have 27 different styles of safari wear to choose from, all in several safari colors in sizes ranging from XS to XXL. Check out their new SHE Safari Bush Canvas items for your bush wear. Add in the tested Rover Belt that you have been asking for and your safari collection apparel is complete. Rest assured these new styles live up to the SHE Safari philosophy of function then fash-side lightly when it comes to design. The new upland additions are not only built with the best in material selection, but have taken women's upland wear to a whole new fashion statement level.

The camouflage collection includes many new styles for both warm and cold climates. New for 2008, SHE Safari introduces several great new materials for women.

SHE Safari Soft Silence which is now available in their Elite Series apparel, is a comfortable, durable, moisture-wicking and a four-way stretch technical fabric. Comfort, fit and field ready apparel has never been so easy for women. Also for 2008, SHE Safari introduced a line of soft hand, moisture-wicking, quick- dry microfiber available in short- and long-sleeved shirts, as well as a great new pair of zip-off pants for those warmer climates. If you are heading for the colder climates. you will want to try their 3M Thinsulate®, Polartec® lined apparel and add in a set of their new first-layer garments. Designs are available in the latest camouflage technology from the Realtree® and Advantage® camouflage brands.

You have been asking about shooting apparel. Now you have it. Designed in consultation with Kim Rhode, the new technical shooting apparel line will prove to be the premier shooting apparel line for women. Kim Rhode is the most decorated female Olympian winning the gold medal at the Centennial Olympic Games in Atlanta and the bronze medal at the Sydney Olympic Games. Kim has also won gold medals in World Cup competitions and the Pan American Games.

Meticulously thought-out and designed, the initial release of the line includes several shooting vests and shooting shirts, pullover hooded shooting top, technical shooting jacket and several lightweight and breathable first layer technical garments. SHE Safari is proud to have the exclusive women's evoSHIELD® energy dispersion sleeve incorporated into every garment. This new technolgy disperses up to 90 percent of the felt recoil, and it is only available in women's garments through SHE Safari. The evoSHIELD® is sold separately through SHE Safari or its dealer network nationwide for its exclusive women's apparel.

As promised, SHE Safari upholds its commitment to provide women the most comprehensive, field-tested line of outdoor hunting, field and shooting apparel. Visit its Web site at www.shesafari.com to find a dealer near you, or stop by Booth 1153 at the Dallas Safari Club 2008 Sporting Convention and Expo.

Joshua Creek a sportsman's paradise

1,200-acre game preserve and resort offers plentiful hunting, fishing oshua Creek Ranch sits amidst ancient oaks in the scenic Texas Hill Country, a welcoming retreat for visitors who want to partake of plentiful hunting, superb service and stress-free entertain-

Located off IH 10 West, just north of Boerne, the 1,200-acre game preserve and resort is a mesh of wooded hills, creek bottom land and open fields that are home to bobwhite quail, pheasant, chukar, Hungarian partridge, Axis deer, whitetail deer and turkey.

This sportsman's paradise also offers spring-fed Joshua Creek, which is stocked with rainbow trout for catch-and-release fly-fishing. On the property's northern border is the Guadalupe River, where anglers can fish for smallmouth bass, black bass, Guadalupe bass, bluegill and catfish.

Owners Ann and Joe Kercheville bought Joshua Creek Ranch in 1986 and opened it up to visitors in 1990. Company President Ann Kercheville says their specialty is their clients' success

That might mean a successful hunt for some visitors or a successful meeting for others. Primarily, the focus is on offering hosts a stress-free site to entertain clients.

"The host doesn't have to worry about any details except his guest list," she said. Taking care of all the details, coupled with comfortable accommodations, great cuisine and hunting opportunities year-round, ensures return business.

"We have probably a 90-plus (percent) guest return rate," Kercheville said.

Bill Blount of Ohio, who spent the first 39 years of his life in San Antonio, first hunted at Joshua Creek Ranch in 2001.

He liked it so much, he's visited six times. Last February, he and friend Jim Gallegos of Austin hunted quail, chukar and pheasant. And, although Blount truly loves the wing-shooting, it's the first-class treatment, the outstanding amenities and the superb cuisine that keep bringing him back.

"They have a chef who cooks a lot of wild game, and the food is great," said Blount, who also appreciates the ranch's fine wine selection. The ranch's four-course gourmet dinners feature such entrees as grilled Axis venison with green peppercorn sauce, roasted quail in apple and honey sauce, and grilled rainbow trout served over garlic roasted fettuccine. Joshua Creek can accommodate up to 42 overnight guests; 25 guests per half-day for wingshooting; and 20 guests for deer hunting

They also offer facilities to host meetings or company retreats.

Guests can book single/double occupancy rooms or suites. Small groups also can opt for the more secluded Stone Haus, a three-bedroom house with its own kitchen. New luxury cottages will be available starting the summer of 2008.

Joshua Creek also offers a membership plan for those who plan to hunt several times year. For a monthly rate, members get signifi-cant discounts on the ranch's services and accommodations and are welcome to access the ranch year-round for fishing. To make a reservation, call (830) 537-5090 or (830) 230-5191 or e-mail your request with the dates you want to visit and how many are in your party to info@joshuacreek.com. For additional information, visit www.joshuacreek.com. Representatives of Joshua Creek Ranch also will be available to visit with prospective guests at Booth No. 269 at the Dallas Safari Club's Sporting Expo Jan. 10-13.

Pond King enhances fishing experience

Business has seen increased demand for its products

rad Metzler's business is all about helping his customers enhance their fishing experience on their ponds and lakes.

His background includes graduat-Ins background includes graduat-ing from the fisheries program at Texas A&M University in 1995. Shortly after, he started his business, Pond King, Inc. More than a decade later, his company has evolved to include the manufacturing of a wide range of unique products, in addition to offering extensive lake management services, including fish stocking.

"I built my business by designing and developing new products," he said. "Most of our customers want to go out and spend more time fishing and less time working on

Pond King started out building PK Floating Docks. With the ever-changing levels of Texas ponds and lakes, Metzler wanted to build a dock that would rise and fall in response and be maintenance-free. The docks are built with all galvanized frames and tubing, composite decks and polyethylene encapsulated floats. The company offers several standard models and will customize options and configurations to suit the individual.

The next idea Metzler began working on was Pond King's line of mini-pontoon boats. was Pond King's line of mini-pontoon boats. "What customers are looking for are boats that can be left out on the water without deteriorating," he said. With that in mind, he designed three all-aluminum mini-pontoon boats. Among the three models available, the Pond King Pro is the mid-size and most popular. "It's big enough to take out to the local lake and small enough to back into you own small nond It's perfect for serious." you own small pond. It's perfect for serious fishermen that don't want to spend a fortune on the latest bass boat," Metzler said. With increased demand for the boats, Metzler has geared up to produce the majority of the components in-house, allowing for a larger inventory and an increased production rate.

"We now have the ability to build the boats completely on-site; this has basically doubled our production capacity. With this increase, we can proceed with taking on more dealerships in the upcoming season,'

Pond King's latest products are the "Honey Hole Tree" and "The BaitMaker." These artificial fish habitats are designed to replace trees or brush in adding structure to ponds and lakes. Unlike trees, these two products are made from polyethylene, a material that will not deteriorate or rot over time. It was also designed to be easily fished through. The Honey Hole Tree is ideal for depths over seven feet, while The BaitMaker was designed for shallow water

"By placing three or more of the Honey Hole Trees in a cluster, you provide a com-plex structure for gamelish giving yourself an instant 'Honey Hole,' " Metzler said.

The BaitMaker is a dome-shaped structure that helps promote the survival of juvenile fish by providing escape cover and spawning habitat in shallow water. Both units are stackable and are easily palletized for bulk

Metzler is working on his next product, a floating fish feeder. He plans on having them in production and ready for retail by February

Thornton's leadership boosts DSC growth

Outgoing executive director takes club to great heights

n 10 years, Gray Thornton led the Dallas Safari Club to heights it had never seen - nor envisioned.

During Thornton's tenure as executive director, membership increased 500 percent, fundraising net revenues 464 percent, cash reserves 783 percent and grants to mission programs 1000 percent.

Thornton announced he would vacate his post to contribute in new directions to the conservation of the world's wildlife and wild places. Thornton remains to lead the Club's 2008 convention efforts - his 11th Dallas Safari Club convention since taking the helm of the organization in November of 1997.

"When I joined Dallas Safari Club as executive director, Thornton said, "I set personal goals for its organizational and convention growth and recognition within the conservation community. I take great pride that through the dedication and hard work of a core group of volunteers, unmatched in the industry, and dedicated staff, who each contribute at a level beyond any other team I have led, we have accomplished and surpassed these goals.

Gray combines a rare talent

of being an outstanding outdoorsman who has the ability to promote worthwhile projects affecting wildlife and the envi-ronment," said Dick Hart, a DSC member and inductee to the Texas Freshwater Fishing Hall of Fame. "He looks like an outdoorsman. He is an outdoorsman. And as an outdoorsman. he has focused his considerable energy and direction to preserve and protect the outdoors."

"We'll miss him," said Thornton's successor, Ben Carter. "And we wish him well. Gray has helped Dallas Safari Club achieve a high place in the industry, and has positioned us for even bigger and better things.

Carter is a past president of DSC, and has been a volunteer for years. "I appreciate my close relationship with Gray both as a volunteer and in preparing for this position," he said.

Thornton has hunted big and small game throughout North America, including Alaska; and he has hunted in Germany. Mexico, New Zealand, and on 13 safaris in southern Africa. He also is an avid fly-fisherman and has fly-fished fresh and salt water throughout North America, Alaska, Mexico, Chile, New Zealand, Africa and The Bahamas.

The next chapter of Thornton's career will take place from his new home in Cody, Wyo. In May, Thornton will join the Foundation for North American Wild Sheep.

But that's not the only change in store for Thornton. While on a November trip to Africa, after receiving the Professional Hunters Association of South Africa's Coenraad Vermaak Distinguished Service Award PHASA's top honor — Thornton and his long-time girlfriend, Kelli Sellers, climbed a high African peak. While they viewed herds of African game below, he placed a fine diamond in her hand and pro-

"How could you say no to that?" Kelli Sellers asked. "It just doesn't get any more perfect than that."

Thornton slyly downplayed the romantic angle. "The deals on diamonds are a lot better in Africa," he said.

The couple plans to wed in February.

SEMINARS AT A GLANCE

Boddington and Carter on the Big Five

Presenter: Craig T. Boddington and Ivan Carter Craig Boddington, DSC Life Member and

host of the DSC-sponsored hit television series "Tracks Across Africa," is the most prolific outdoor writer and recognized hunting personality of our generation. The author of 20 books and over 3,000 magazine articles on the subjects of hunting and firearms, Boddington's straightforward, no-nonsense approach has made him one of the most sought after speakers in the hunting industry Ivan Carter is one of the most dynamic professional hunters of the modern-day safari

No game classification in the history of hunting carries the mystique as "Africa's Big Five." Few modern day hunters have the experience of Boddington and Carter with the Big Five. In this seminar, Craig and Ivan share their experiences with hunting the Dark Continent's most dangerous big game

Safari Planning, Importing Your Trophies

and Firearm Travel Tips
Presenters: Terry Blauwkamp, Carol

Rutkowski & Anne Gaines-Burrill

Dallas Safari Club hand-loading specialist, veteran of numerous African safaris and author of "African Tips for Trips," Terry Blauwkamp offers tips for the first-timer or veteran safari hunter planning an African safari. Customs and clearing expert Carol Rutkowski, of Coppersmith, Inc. will advise participants on the proper procedures to ship and import their valued trophies back home. Anne Gaines-Burrill from Air 2000 Hunters Support will give a rundown on the requirements of the South African Firearms Control Act and what you need to do to bring your own firearms to Africa.

Hunting Whitetails Presenter: Larry "Mr. Whitetail" Weishuhn Dallas Safari Club Life Member, Dallas Safari Club Game Trails field editor, author television host and world-renowned whitetail expert, Larry Weishuhn offers his expert advice on hunting North America's favorite game animal. Learn Larry's secrets for success at this excellent seminar that will include trophy judgment, hunting techniques and just about everything you wish to learn about white-tailed deer.

Hunting South Africa

Presenter: Peter Flack
Peter Flack is an 11th generation, South African businessman (the chairman of Rowland Ward), conservationist and game rancher, as well as the author and editor of four books, hundreds of articles and the producer of six DVDs on African hunting. He has been on hundreds of safaris in 12 African countries for over 140 species of game and, last year, received the highest accolade that amateur hunting organizations in South Africa can bestow, The Musgrave Award, for his life-time achievements and contribution to hunting. He is an entertaining speaker and authority on hunting in his country.

Wilderness Survival

Presenter: Peter Kummerfeldt DSC survival editor and member, Peter Kummerfeldt will share his unmatched knowledge and firsthand skills developed from 30 years as a United States Air Force wilderness safety and survival instructor and the lessons he learned along the way Proven practical survival skills, not primitive skills or myths, will be discussed skills that work under the most difficult of survival circumstances.

Wilderness Medicine

Presenter: Eric Sine, Global Rescue Quick Reaction Team Leader, Senior Chief USN, Senior Naval Instructor, US Special Operations Command 18D Paramedic Course

To teach this class, Senior Chief Sine, Naval Senior Enlisted Leader at the Joint Special Operations Medical Training Center, Ft. Bragg, N. C., and veteran of Operation Desert Shield, Storm, Saber and Iraqi Freedom, will draw from his 18 years of U.S. Military Special Operations experience.

Senior Chief Sine will cover how to incorporate a first-aid kit, gear and environmental aids to ensure the survival of you or a fellow hunter should an injury occur. This class will have something for everyone, from the most basic first-aid tools to those used by advanced rescuers.

Special Offering!
Rowland Ward Measuring Course

Jane Halse from DSC partner and sponsor Rowland Ward will offer a Measuring Course on the Rowland Ward scoring system to certify Rowland Ward Measurers.

J.B. Hill offers high-end handmade Western boots

'We care about our customers, and are very proud of the boots and belts we make'

"A well-made boot is like any fine article of clothing. It fits your curves, feels right, gives joy, draws compliments."

— J.B. Hill Boot Co.

hen you put the finest of leathers and exotic skins into the result will be a pair of boots that's pleasing to the feet and to the eye.

Since 1996, El Paso-based J.B. Hill Boot

Company has been offering high-end hand-made Western boots to its customers.

Company President Dr. James Hill, a retired racehorse veterinarian, says quality and customer service are the company goals: "We care about our customers, and are very proud of the boots and belts that we make."

In "The Art of the Boot" (Gibbs Smith, publisher), author Tyler Beard describes his first encounter with J.B. Hill Boots, as he watches the "luscious" samples being pulled out of their black bags: "I sat transfixed in a their black bags: "I sat transfixed in a stunned state of boot bondage. These boots were slick as glass, beauteous to behold."

They are boots that just make you kind of swagger a bit, Dr. Hill has said.

For that, thank the company's designers and bootmakers, second- and third-generation craftsmen who learned their art from their fathers and crandfuthers. They hand. their fathers and grandfathers. They hand-cut, sew and bench last each pair of boots, one pair at a time.

The company has more than 100 standard styles from which customers can choose.

They can request a catalog, visit the com-pany Web site and place their order directly through the customer service department at the factory.

Customers also can design their own personalized boot

They can pick the heel style, the type of toe they prefer and the height of the boots. They also can choose from a variety of colors and skins: including calf, buffalo, alligator, ostrich, lizard, shark and more, I.B. Hill also provides a service that will build boots for customers, utilizing the skins that are harvested on hunts. This is assuming that the hides are of good quality and approved tannage.

Using only the finest leathers and skins with superb tannage and world-class finishes, combined with the best findings (insoles outsoles, heels, cement, shanks and thread) ensures the wearer of many years of comfort and long-lasting beauty.

To assist the company in the fit process, a "fitter boot" that has been built on the company's clean last will be used to first establish size. They also will require additional foot tracings and some measurements. The fitting process using the fitter boot is to allow customers to put on a J.B. Hill boot, which gives them the opportunity to experi-ence both the fit and quality prior to having a boot built

From this starting point, adjustments will be made.

In difficult-to-fit situations, a custom last will be built. And the last will be kept for up to two years for any additional orders.

J.B. Hill welcomes visitors to its El Paso factory and at trade shows for personalized fittings. However, a personal visit is not necessary to establish the fit. The company will mail the fitter boot directly to the client's home or office.

As well as handmade boots, LB, Hill also makes mules, belts and other accessories.

"Alaska's First Family of Furs" is truly an Alaskan treasure!

Since 1922 the artisans at David Green Furs have pioneered the classic fine fur styles that Alaska is famous for. For generations David Green's fur buyers have developed relationships with fur trappers in more than 100 remote towns and villages all across the vast area of Alaska.

They then choose only the highest quality raw furs to "make their magic" as the leading designers and creators of the most distinctive and cherished finest fur fashions.

No wonder The Anchorage Daily News (Alaska's largest newspaper) reader's survey just named David Green Furs its PLATINUM AWARD WINNER as "The Best and Most Popular Furrier in Alaska".

In addition for many years David Green Furs has been given the honor of being "One of the 10 best retail stores in Alaska".

David Green Furs is now celebrating their 85th anniversary as "Alaska's Most Recommended Furrier." David Green Furs has one of the largest selections in the United States under one roof with over 3,000 spectacular garments available.

LUXURIOUS MINK, BEAVER, LYNX, FOX, SABLE, CHINCHILLA AND MORE!

Both traditional and cutting edge styles and colors fill the David Green Showrooms and vaults. Everything your heart desires is at David Green Master Furrier. Coats, parkas, jackets, vests, capes, gloves, scarves, accessories and much, much more!

Our Factory Showroom is located in downtown Anchorage on 4th Avenue between "A" and "B" Streets and with a summer location at the Port of Ketchikan, David Green Furs has long been the destination for hunters and visitors to The Last Frontier.

Superior quality as well as choice is a huge factor in making your fine fur selection. The element of trust is paramount when considering the purchase of a fine fur and David Green Furs has earned their moniker "IF YOU DON'T KNOW FURS, KNOW YOUR FURRIER."

"We're looking forward to meeting you in person at booths 962-964. We make furs more fun!" David & Shani Green

Oliver's expertise benefits safari hunters

Africa Hunting Safaris, Inc. hunts prime areas

"All things considered, there are only two kinds of people in the world: Those who stay home and those who do not. The second are those who ao 110.... the most interesting."
— Rudyard Kipling.

Hunters who opt not to stay home and book a safari through Africa Hunting Safaris, Inc., (for-merly Zimbabwe Wildlife Safaris) will not only benefit from Ron Oliver's expertise in hunting but also from his familiarity with Africa.

Ron, who began hunting as a young boy, followed in his father's footsteps and joined the military. While serving 25 years in the U.S. Army, Ron was assigned to the diplomatic corps in Africa for nine years as well as 14 years in Asia and the Pacific. For six of those years, he served at the American Embassy in Harare, where he assisted the National Parks in legalizing

"And about 60 percent are return clients," says Ron, who adds that much of his clientele is generated by word-of-mouth.

Ron can help arrange a proper hunt to maximize the chance of success for dozens of major species, including the Big 5.

"I have exclusivity on the ranches and safari areas where we hunt," he says. These prime areas include sites in Zimbabwe (including Matetsi Unit 5 by Victoria Falls), South Africa, Zambia and Namibia. Ron says there's no better deal than Zimbabwe right now because the low trophy fees and daily rates have stayed constant for the last couple of years. In some regions in Africa, those fees have been escalating

Ron suggests that hunters who want to book an African safari should book about a year ahead. This helps them get the dates and species they want. Most people travel between May and October. Booking a May and October. Booking a trip with Africa Hunting Safaris, Inc. is as easy as telling Ron what you want to hunt and when. He will advise you on the country to hunt, best areas to visit, give you a quote on how much the trip will cost, and then make the arrangements

Ron says he has been working with his safari operations for a long time and knows them all personally as well as professionally

And, two or three months each year, he is in Africa check-ing out the service firsthand, as well as assessing the security and political situation in each

The resort's owner, Jim Conklin, The resort's owner, Jim Conklin, says the Redish Lodge is more than great fishing. It also offers luxurious accommodations, gourmet cuisine and unique geography.

"The location and geography are key, said lodge manager Brian Holden. "They lend themselves to doing what we do."

Siene Conklin expend the record

Since Conklin opened the resort in 1992, it has grown tremendously. Now overseen by his daughter, Melissa Rogers, the lodge was visited by 300 guests in its first year of operation. Last year, the resort hosted 4,800 guests.

"Eighty-five percent are repeat customers," said Holden, who has been with the lodge since it opened.

The fishing resort's busy season is Capital Farm Credit state's largest rural

Many head for the country to enjoy favorite pastime

COUNTRY LIVING: Hunters account for a large share of recreational land buyers. Other interests range from fishing and weekend ranching to wildlife photography and hiking.

A growing number of people are heading to the country to buy land, and most of them are looking for a place where they can enjoy their favorite pastime. Hunters account for a large share of recreational land buyers, but other diverse interests range from fishing and weekend ranching to wildlife photography and hiking.

This news comes as no surprise to the lending specialists at Capital Farm Credit, the state's largest rural lender. They have witnessed the trend first-hand

"We've seen a huge increase in the number of people buying land for recreation, so much so that it has become the primary driving factor for land values in many areas," said Ben Novosad, Capital Farm Credit's chief executive officer.

Live in the City, Own Land in the Country

Jay Stewart, president of Capital Farm Credit's Mason office, which makes loans in the Texas Hill Country, has seen recreation and long-term investment potential become two of the top reasons people give for wanting to buy property.

"Many new land buyers view real estate as a tangible investment asset with a reasonable expectation of return that their family can enjoy while it appreciates," Stewart said. "It's kind of hard to enjoy a stock certificate or mutual funds, but with land you can get out and do the things you enjoy."

The lending cooperative also reports an upswing in the number of city-dwellers owning land in the country.

"Some of our customers are planning to leave the city behind and move to the country full-time," Novosad said. "But an equal number just want a place to go on the weekends. We can help both."

Specialists in Rural Financing

Capital Farm Credit specializes in rural financing, including loans for rural land, country homes, agriculture and agribusiness. The lender also can provide operating capital or loans for equipment and land improvements.

"If it's in the country, we can finance it," Novosad said. "We've been making rural loans for 90 years, so we have a depth of experience that most other lenders can't offer."

Stewart agreed that knowledge of the local area and expertise in rural lending can be a huge help to people looking to buy rural land. "When people come in who have a piece of property they're interested in, most of the time we are familiar with the property or at least with the area and can tell them something about it." Stewart said.

Customers Share in Earnings

"Another big advantage is that because we are a cooperative, our customers share in our earnings," Novosad said. "We've returned more than $100 million to our customers through our patronage program over the last decade."

That pays off for Capital Farm Credit customers, said Don Liska, who ranches near Beeville.

"Capital is the only financial institution I know of that pays you to do business with them," Liska said. He financed his first piece of property with Capital Farm Credit in 1994 and went there again two years ago when he was ready to buy more land.

"My experience with my local Capital office has been excellent. I've known them for a long while, and they're good people," Liska said. "I already enjoy doing business there. The patronage payment is a bonus."

For more information about Capital Farm Credit, visit www.capitalfarmcredit.com or visit Booth 113 at the Dallas Safari Club Sporting Convention and Expo.

We're the answer.

Buy hunting land. Enjoy nature. Improve habitat.

No matter what you want to do, we can finance it. And Capital Farm Credit also shares its earnings — we've returned more than $100 million to our borrowers.
